Our Presenters:

Steve York has been actively engaged with Quaglia Institute for School Voice and Aspirations for 14 years. His career includes 14 years of teaching, 19 years of school leadership, and 7 years as an Assistant Superintendent of Educational Services with the Montana OPI. He has experience implementing student voice in his school, training Montana educators to successfully utilize voice data and has lead student and teacher focus groups as follow up to voice survey collections.

Steve is a Montana native raised in the Mission Valley and currently living in Polson. Along with School Voice, he continues to improve the educational opportunities of our Montana kids as an ambassador for the Montana Digital Academy's EdReady Math and English support program.

Kim York has a Master's Degree in Social Work which has led her to numerous opportunities to work with students and their perceptions about school experience. This includes work as a home school coordinator, Project Success counselor, intensive case management coordinator for the Aspire program, academic mentor as well as work for AWARE, Inc., the Montana Department of Family Services and a TANF case manager for MT Department of Labor and Industry. She has designed and led student focus groups including helping schools establish action plans through the use of SMART goals. Listening to seek understanding and then finding strategies to navigate towards positive change has been her motivator throughout her career.

She is also a Montana native raised in Shelby. She lives in Polson.

VOICE AND VISION

Using Data to Inform Decisions and Direction

By the end of the day, you will have gained strategies to:

- Analyze your school's student voice data by drilling down to formulate questions to use in gaining more insight into student perceptions of their school experience.
- Use questions formulated to design and conduct focus groups.
- Use focus group response trends to develop concrete action plans to effect positive change in students' school perceptions of their overall school journey.
- Assess future surveys to determine if action plans need modification.
- Understand how staff and parent surveys impact the process of changing school culture.
